Persuasive Emails

Session : Persuasive Emails

- Persuasion
- Negative feedback
- Tonality
- Structure

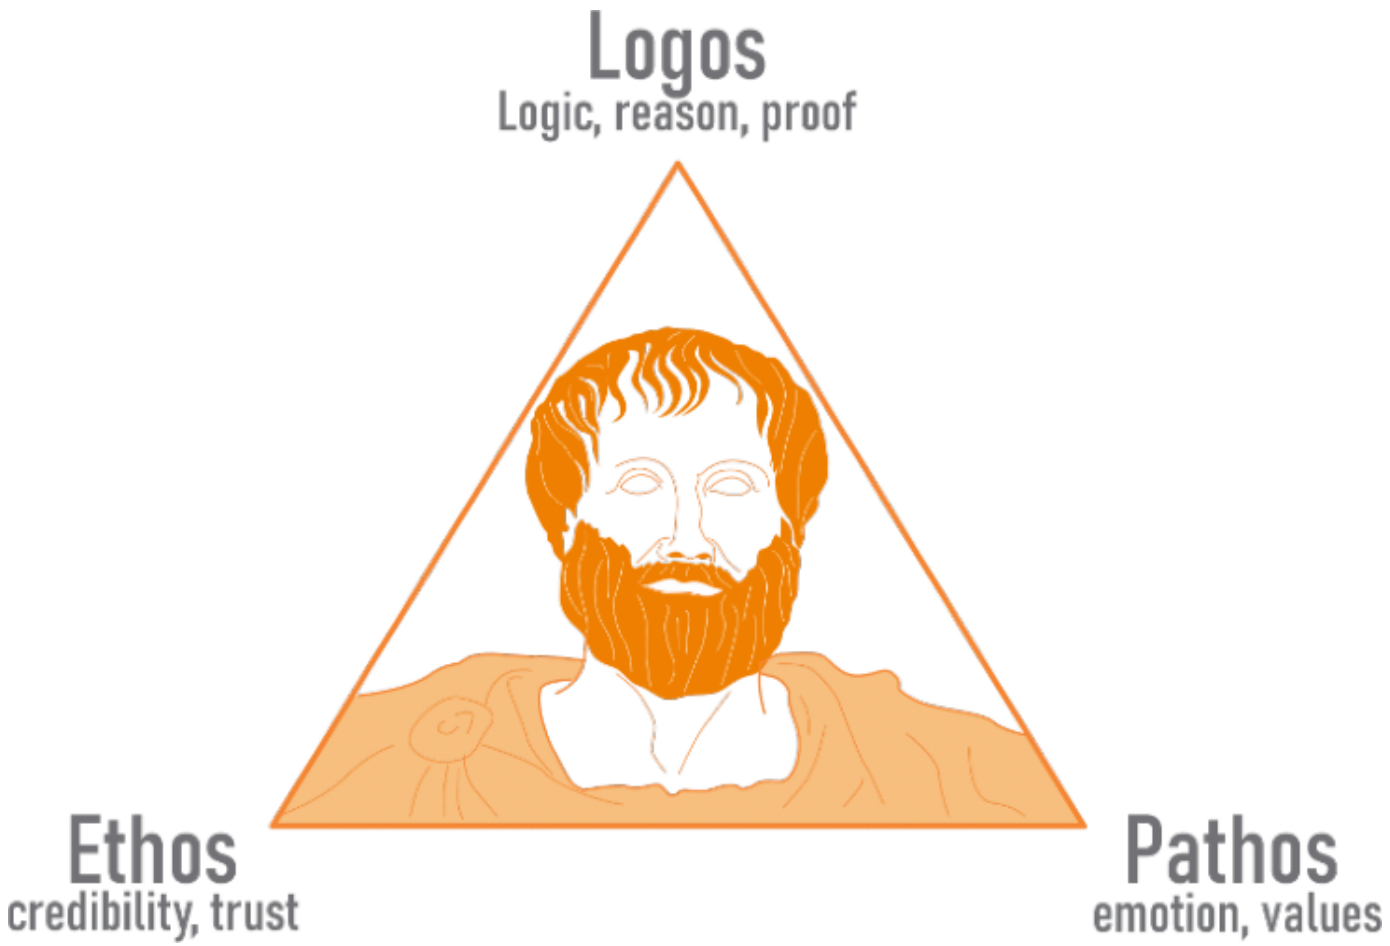

Giving Negative Feedback

- Start with appreciation
- Give concise / specific rationale for the feedback
- Focus on a specific way forward: Communicate the way forward using conditional phrasing
  - It would be better if..
  - If it helps…
  - If possible, can you…
  - Perhaps you can…
- Avoid imperative
  - Could you/ would you … vs do this/ do that/ go there/ talk to him
- Use the word ”yet”

Session 4: Persuasive Emails

- Persuasion
- Negative feedback
- Tonality
- Structure

Persuasive Email: Persuasion

Persuasive email: Using Ethos (credibility) to persuade in emails

- Refer to shared objectives/ values or goals
  - I am equally invested in our project …
- Refer to shared experiences
  - I have been where you are and seen what you are experiencing…
- Introduce your role when needed: establish credibility
  - As a manager, I wish to say that…, As a project lead…, as a CXO…
- Find common connects or common experiences
  - The last time we went to the consumer work together…
  - I write to you with reference from Mr Patel…

Persuasive email: Pathos

- Pathos: Emotions/ Empathy
  - Empathize: Human beings feel differently, with every communication. Can you feel what they feel ? Articulate emotions of others in tense/ sensitive situations/ while giving negative feedback
    - I appreciate your patience on the delay in my response…
    - I understand how disappointed you feel with this…
    - I am sure you would be very excited after last week…

- Use words which articulate emotions (adjectives do): exciting, depressing, disappointed, happy, sad etc to express a state of being of the audience

Persuasive email: Logos

- Logic/ supportive evidence/ data / reasoning

Arguments: Claim / Evidence

- Dear Prithvi Shaw, it would really help if you'd work towards your fitness. You have not passed the Yo Yo test twice over. Getting back to the right BMI Index would be a good start

- You can work towards creating better rapport with other teams. The feedback from your collegues on collaboration is 3.2 on a scale of 5 which can be improved

Session 4: Persuasive Emails

- Persuasion
- Negative feedback
- Tonality
- Structure

Persuasive email: Subject Line

- 5-6 words is a good thumb rule
- Timeline if critical can be added
  - Eg “Sales report Submission needed: Friday EOD”

- Avoid generic words without any details (Thanks/ Hey/ Hi)
- Use “Urgent” and “Important” only when needed

Persuasive email: opening paragraph: Communicate purpose asap

- Clearly state why are you writing this email upfront
- Summarise key ideas “if needed”, don’t give the details here
- Specific to target audience (reader’s need / psyche in mind)

- Why this email. What is expected of the reader
  - Did something happen recently which triggered this email ? (market visit yesterday / a drop in a sales last month/ review meeting today etc.). Mention what triggered this email
  - Summary of the key idea

Persuasive email: Communicate purpose…can start with "This is to…"

- This is to inform you about the review committee meeting results…
- This is to inform / update you about…
- This is to seek your approval / guidance …
- This is to find time in your schedule…

Session 4: Persuasive Emails

- Persuasion
- Negative feedback
- Tonality
- Structure

Persuasive email: Tonality

- Professional
  - Bruh, dude
  - Gonna be done vs Going to be done
  - Kinda vs kind of

- Respectful: salutation and signature should be respectful / relevant / personalised
  - Dear
  - Dear Mr Yadav
  - Hello Rahul

  - Regards, warm regards, sincerely, with thanks .. etc

Opening Paragrpahs

Opening Paragraphs: RCA/ Analysis/ Reviews

- WHAT happened / WHAT is it about (review)
- HOW MUCH (key numbers)
- WHEN
- WHERE
- WHY it happened (RCA)/ INSIGHTS (reviews)
- WHAT NEXT

Opening Paragraphs – Requests/ Recommendations/ Approvals

- WHAT are you seeking
- WHY it matters to the approver
- WHEN (by when approval needed, key dates for execution etc)
